Army Learning Management System (LMS)

The Army's LMS is a web-enabled information system that will assist students, trainers, and training managers in the conduct and management of training throughout their Army career. Accessible from the Army Knowledge Online (AKO), the Army LMS provides one central location for all of your training needs!

- Register and enroll students
- Monitor testing and student progress
- Distribute, deliver, store and present education and training products
- Maintain training and education records
- Collect and store feedback and evaluations
- Maintain a database of education and training products and resources

Visit the Army LMS via AKO at www.us.army.mil, my training.

The Army LMS enables:

- Soldiers to take distributed learning and manage their training records
- Civilians to take HQDA directed training (e.g. POSH)
- Operational leaders and training NCO's to access individual training readiness in units
- Training managers to schedule and commit training resources
- Training developers to assess course quality
